

WE SHALL WIN BY 70,000—VAN WYCK.

Mayor Makes Many Virulent Attacks on Fusionists at Board of Estimate Meeting.

At the Board of Estimate meeting today Mayor Van Wyck devoted a good portion of the two hours' session to condemning and attacking the Fusion candidates and the reformers, and to bestowing unqualified praise on the Tammany ticket, which he said would be elected by from 60,000 to 70,000 majority.

Commissioner Dalton, of the Department of Water, was asked for the 1902 estimate for next year, an increase of $28,000 over this year's allowance. In explaining an increase in the Bureau of Water Register the Commissioner referred to the attack of the Merchants' Association, which said that the Bureau had fallen behind in collecting taxes. The Commissioner said that $500,000 more had been collected this year than heretofore.

At this the Mayor wheeled in his chair, grew red in the face and shouted: "We must not pay any attention to what the Merchants' Association and the papers say. They are now working for the campaign in the maintenance of the Croton system of $4,107,450 was asked for, and again the Merchants' Association attacks were brought up. The Mayor this time said:

"The Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce have become the Campaign Committee for the Republican candidates, and those trashy utterances of theirs must be taken that way."

Commissioner Kearney asked for $1,561,515 for lamps and lighting in Manhattan and the Bronx, an increase of $1,515,150 over last year. The Mayor looked favorably on this increase and it will be granted, as will proportionate increases for the same item in the other boroughs.

When Brooklyn's sub-department was called, Deputy Commissioner Kerwin spoke for it, as Commissioner Kearney professed ignorance. He asked for an increase of $1,561,515 in the item of supplies and repairs.

The Mayor remarked that he thought supplies and repairs were being converted into additional salaries about this time of the year.

Deputy Commissioner Kerwin did not like the insinuation and answered hotly that he would be glad to have the Grand Jury come into his office this afternoon for examination, and that he would stay away and not interfere.

The Mayor turned the attack from the Deputy Commissioner to the Grand Jury at this point, and replied:

"These Grand Jurors are ready at all times to pull people up, but so far they haven't got anything that sticks."

"We have got a District Attorney over here who likes this sort of thing and is against the administration. We shall probably hear of his efforts to save him from a trip up the river, but I don't care anything about it."

LOW IN TEARS SAYS ADIEU.

Farewell to Columbia on Leaving to Enter Mayor's Campaign.

Seth Low shed tears in bidding adieu to the students of Columbia today, when in his annual address he gave notice that he would tender his resignation as President of the university, in order to enter the Mayor's campaign.

It was with difficulty that he finished that portion of his speech, which he spoke of the severance of relations. His voice broke several times and finally tears that he had tried to hold back broke forth and he was compelled to cease speaking for a time. He then spoke of the severance of relations. His voice broke several times and finally tears that he had tried to hold back broke forth and he was compelled to cease speaking for a time. He then spoke of the severance of relations. His voice broke several times and finally tears that he had tried to hold back broke forth and he was compelled to cease speaking for a time.

The students cheered wildly, and Mr. Low, after an effort, recovered his composure and finished the address.

It was in the chapel, immediately after the morning service, that Columbia's President gave formal notice of his leave taking.

After referring to the progress made by the University, he dwelt touchingly on the death of President McKinley. He continued:

"I presume that it is no secret to any one of you that this afternoon my resignation as President of the University will be submitted to the trustees and that at my request it will be accepted by them."

"Under the circumstances, it is better for the university and for me that, in accepting this responsibility from the city, I should resign without the fear of complicating the university."

"In answering the summons, I shall retire permanently. I want to enter the campaign as a man who has burned his bridges behind him. I want to be able to say and to do whatever I please without affecting the university."

"For the university it is better that it should be committed to the care of somebody who can give his entire attention to it."

"My firm prayer for the university is that she may always prosper, and that each and every one of you may help to add to her fair fame."

"Columbia has surrendered me to new duties, but she goes on forever, strong and unshaken."

A meeting of the trustees of the university will be held this afternoon, when it is expected that Prof. Van Amringe, Dean of the University, will be chosen as temporary president.

President Low's resignation will not be acted upon.

SONG WRITER A FORGER.

Startling Admission Made by Monroe Rosenfeld.

In the month of January, 1900, says Monroe Rosenfeld, the song writer, he met 1901 on the New Orleans and Tanager races in the pool-room of Charles Heinemann, at No. 62 South avenue, and now he wants his money back. The suit was tried to-day before Justice Matthei in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

Rosenfeld alleges that Heinemann had a system whereby he had back the winners from the races and accepted bets after he knew which horses would win. The bookmaker entered a general denial. When Rosenfeld went on the stand the attorney for Heinemann went into the past history of the song writer, much to his damage.

He made Rosenfeld admit that in 1892, under the name of Marcus Rosenfeld, he had been indicted for forgery and had served a term in the Elmira reformatory.

ILLINOIS DAY AT BUFFALO.

Gov. Yates and Senator Mason Addressed Big Gathering from West.

BUFFALO, Oct. 7.—After three postponements Illinois Day at the Pan-American Exposition was finally celebrated to-day. There was a large attendance.

After music by the First Regiment Band, Bishop Samuel Fallows, of Chicago, delivered prayer. The remainder of the programme consisted of an address of welcome by John G. Milner, President of the Exposition Company, and response by Gov. Yates, of Illinois, and address by United States Senator William E. Mason, of Illinois, and Edward A. Mander, of Chicago. The exercises were interspersed with vocal and instrumental music.

BISSERT BACK IN THE TOMBS

Judge Lacombe Takes the Wardman's Case Under Advisement.

Attorneys for George C. Bissert, convicted wardman, took up to-day before Judge Lacombe, of the United States Circuit Court, the fight to keep him out of Sing Sing Prison.

The argument was completed this afternoon, and Judge Lacombe took the case under advisement. Bissert was remanded to the Tombs.

On a writ of habeas corpus Bissert was brought from the Tombs and sat in Judge Lacombe's court. He was asked to leave him from a trip up the river.

Attorneys Roger Sherman and Fred House, of counsel for the ex-policeman, have laid their plans with the avowed intention of taking the case to the United States Supreme Court—the court of last resort—in the event of defeat to-day.

Assistant District Attorney H. S. Gans represented the city in opposition to the plea of Bissert's counsel.

When the case was called attorneys for both sides were ready, but the length of the calendar delayed it.

Assistant District Attorney Gans in his reply to the allegations of counsel for Bissert, drew out the facts, which were in error or violation of the Fourteenth Amendment in the wardman's trial and will vigorously oppose any proposition that he be temporarily freed on bail.

At 2:50 the case was called. Roger Sherman presented to the Court the three points upon which the ex-policeman asks a change from the State to Federal custody.

Finally Judge Lacombe asked him to suggest the fundamental law upon which the prisoner claims habeas corpus.

Mr. Sherman said that if the State law sentence held good the prisoner would serve out his sentence before the Supreme Court could reach it.

If a wrong had been done the prisoner under the Federal statutes he was entitled to know it now.

Attorney Sherman also argued that the prisoner's claim of habeas corpus gave ample authority to ask for a transfer of the case from State to Federal jurisdiction. The question of whether he had had a common law jury was a question for the Federal courts to settle.

At some length he explained the grounds upon which the transfer of the case was sought.

Before Mr. Sherman had proceeded far in his exposition of the defects of the Common Law Jury system, the Court asked for a detailed explanation of how the jury that convicted Bissert was selected.

Mr. Sherman stated that the State law is unconstitutional," said Judge Lacombe. "I have not said so," replied Mr. Sherman.

"But your argument leads to that inevitable conclusion," said the Judge.

Mr. Sherman contended that the wardman had not been fairly tried because all the members of the jury had been selected from a class favoring the State's contention, thereby limiting and abridging the right of the defendant to challenge.

After Mr. Sherman had presented many points in favor of his claims, Judge Lacombe said:

"It is idle for me to sit here and listen to arguments not properly under habeas corpus."

"If I were not inclined to grant the habeas corpus on the points already presented for you, I could not take the case from the State courts to the Federal court."

Mr. Sherman insisted that he must make all the points possible in this court, clearly intimating that if the habeas corpus was not granted, he would appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

It was a clock when the Assistant District Attorney, Mr. Gans, began his reply to the arguments of the defense.

He insisted that the court ought not to grant the habeas corpus, and that the trial had been fair.

FRENCH REVENUE FELL OFF.

September Returns Showed a Big Government Deficit.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Official returns for September show that the decrease in the revenue is 22,095,700 francs, compared with 20,082,300 francs in the same month of 1900. Under the estimates the total deficit for the first nine months of 1901 amounts to 137,000,000 francs, compared with 88,000,000 during the same period of 1900. Under the estimates sugar is responsible for a deficit of 6,000,000 francs.

The Temps to-day takes a gloomy view of the prospect. It says it is impossible to face such a situation without serious anxiety with no particular circumstances or unusual expenditure.

POLICE ARREST SUSPECT IN THE BOY MURDER CASE.

the precinct that they might have saved themselves great trouble and quickly solved the mystery of the lad's identity by looking on their own "blotter."

Ryan could give the police little aid toward the solution of the mystery of his boy's murder further than to acquaint them with the lad's companions. Detectives were then sent out to trace the lad's movements after leaving home yesterday afternoon.

Finding the Body.

Policemen Hogan and Culhane, walking through West Twenty-second street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, at 8 o'clock, saw what they took to be a sack of oats on the grass plot in the arway of No. 361 West Twenty-second street. Hogan thought it a strange place to leave a sack of oats, and, stepping in, pulled back the flap of the bur-lap. The discolored face of the dead child was revealed.

He felt the body. It was still limp. "He may be alive," said Hogan. "Get an ambulance surgeon."

While awaiting the physician the policeman stripped the sack from the body and found it nude, except for a pair of drawers.

Dr. Chittenden, of the New York Hospital, arrived. He pronounced the child dead. How long life had been in the body, he could not say.

WHERE THE BODY WAS FOUND

extinct he would not say. He would make no examination to determine whether or not violence had been used.

A Coroner's Case.

"This is a case for the Coroner," he said.

The only opinion he would hazard was that the discolorations of the face might have been caused by a rush of blood to the child's head.

The body was removed to the West Twenty-second street station in a patrol wagon.

In the bundle were a pair of blue serge knee pants, of the style that turn in at the knee and fasten with a buckle, a blue sailor cap, with the letters "U. S." on the band, a white shirt waist, two neckties, an undershirt and a black silk belt with metal buckle.

The last night playing in the hallways of the West Twenty-second street station, who is known as Annie Robinson, was taken to the station, where both are detained.

Little Annie Robinson, who is known as Annie Robinson, was taken to the station, where both are detained.

He was at the West Twenty-second street station at midnight and was sent to Headquarters. He had returned to the West Twenty-second street station and kept between the two places until 3 A. M.

"So far as my asking odds is concerned I believe I shall have to give odds to get bets. Men who promised that they would put up low money are nothing but once they heard that George F. Peck, body and other reformers are coming out for Shepard."

Frank Keeney, who once bet $1,342.40 on two jacks only to have the man against him drop dead before he could call with two fours, won up this morning and proclaimed that he has $4,000 to bet on Shepard's vote money.

Early as it is in the campaign, Frank Keeney is being made a man, and the Tenderloin restaurant man, Mark Murphy, the comedian, made a bet at the Metropole last night, Young taking the low end. The loser of this bet is to wear the clothes of the winner in a promenade down Broadway from Forty-second street to Twenty-third street on the Sunday following the election. Young wagers 50 pounds, Murphy 10.

"Manny" Chappelle, the bookmaker, agreed with a member of the Andrew Mackay syndicate, claiming that the mutilations on the body look like the work of a person of that character.

ACORNS FIRE FIRST GUN.

The Order of Acorns, an organization formed by newspaper men for the purpose of opposing Tammany, will hold one-hour meetings every day during the present campaign at No. 361 Broadway.

The first was held to-day. Joseph Johnson, President of the Club, explained the object of the organization and invited all present to stop at the booth in the rear of the room and enroll themselves as members.

There were no initiation fees or dues, the only requirement being that the member being a pledge to support the entire day's election ticket. There will be three special meetings, each limited to ten minutes.

DYING OF ACID POISON.

Pollen Say She Tried Suicide—Husband Says Mistake.

Mrs. Fella Goldberg, wife of Max Goldberg, dealer in paint, at No. 65 Ridge street, is a patient in Gouverneur Hospital suffering from carbolic acid poisoning. Her condition is serious.

Although the police of the Delancey street station have recorded the case as one of attempted suicide, Mr. Goldberg says that his wife mistook the bottle containing the carbolic acid for one in which was medicine she had been taking for nervousness and that she took the poison by mistake.

HAS $100,000 TO BET ON SHEPARD

Keeney, Who Bet $1,342.40 on Two Jacks, Wakes Up and Tells of Wager.

John Considine, bookmaker, who is handling the money of a Democratic syndicate, denied to-day a story that he was holding out for odds. He said he had all the money the other side would take at even money.

In addition to the $100,000 I bet with George Seabury last week, he said, "I made another bet with him yesterday—$10,000 at even money. The stakes are in the hands of C. C. Shyne, the furrier. I have $50,000 more at hand and when that is gone I can get another $50,000."

MOVE TO QUASH 3 INDICTMENTS.

Effort to Clear Glennon, Shields and Dwyer.

Attorney James W. Ridgway, representing Wardman, Glennon, Sergt. Shields and Wardman Dwyer, of the West Thirtieth street police station, under indictment for neglect of duty, moved before Judge McMahon in the U. S. District Court to-day to quash the indictment of the indictments.

He contended that the evidence submitted to the Grand Jury was not substantial and not legal, that witnesses were permitted to testify from hearsay, and that the chief prosecuting witness, Mrs. McCauley, could not swear that Mrs. Marat was the keeper of a disorderly house.

The motion was opposed by Assistant District Attorney Garvan. Decision was reserved.

THE SILENCE OF CROKER.

Boss Has Nothing to Say of Low's Bitter Arraignment.

OTHERS FOLLOW SUIT.

Democratic Club Now a Temple of Mysterious, Dense Silence When an Outsider Mentions Politics.

The Democratic Club, which has always heretofore been full of life, is as solemn as a churchyard. There seem to be plenty of visitors there, but most of them act as if they were afraid to speak above a whisper.

Sentinel "Tim" Sullivan is one of the first visitors at the club every morning. He goes there as regularly as clockwork, has a short talk with Croker and then walks downtown on Fifth avenue.

"Croker" seems to be agitated by all the other members. Every one appears to be afraid to express his mind, and all the information that is given out is done so under the pledge of secrecy.

Mr. Croker again went over the County and borough slate to-day, and while chances may be made it is understood the nominations will be about as follows:

President of the Borough of Manhattan—Jacob Ruppert.

Supreme Court Justices—Morgan J. O'Brien, Samuel Untermyer, Robert A. Van Wyck and Edward G. Whitaker or Benno Lewinson.

County Clerk—Robert Muh or George Fairbach.

District Attorney—Charles W. Dayton or James W. Osborne.

Sheriff—Francis J. Lantry, John T. Oakley or Matthew P. Donohue.

City Court—John P. Schuchman.

Register—Isaac Prosser.

Coroner—Edward T. Fitzpatrick, Joseph Bausch, Antonio Zucca and Edward Hart, all nominated.

Ex-Assemblyman Carroll Dead.

LISBON, Oct. 7.—Nineteen persons lost their lives to-day owing to the foundering of a fishing-boat in the Bay of Peniche, on the south side of the Peninsula of Peniche.

SHEPARD MUM ON DEVERY.

"I Don't Want to Say Anything About Politics Now," He Declares.

OTHERS FOLLOW SUIT.

Then He Says He Will Outline to the Committee His General Policy.

Edward M. Shepard arrived at the Grand Central Station on the Albany flyer this morning, accompanied by his private secretary. He looked worn and worried, but said he was feeling quite well.

"It appears to be the general desire to learn what you will do with Devery should you be elected," said an Evening World reporter to the candidate.

"I don't want to say anything about politics now," was the reply.

"Is Devery politics?"

"Well, I don't want to talk on anything bearing upon official business. You see the position I'm in. I want to say anything until the Nominating Committee calls upon me to-night at my house."

"Will you define your position on Devery to-night?" Mr. Shepard was asked.

"I will define my general policy when the committee notifies me of my nomination. Until that time I have nothing to say about politics."

Mr. Shepard was told that speakers in Cooper Union Saturday night had charged him with making pledges to retain Devery in office. He said he had nothing to say.

Mr. Shepard got into a cab and was driven to his residence in Brooklyn. He said he would remain there this day.

NEIGHBOR TO ROOSEVELT

H. Vanderbilt to Become a Summer Resident of Oyster Bay.

Much interest is being manifested in the movements of agents who have been looking over the estate of Thomas A. Young, at Cove Neck, L. I., and who it is said, represent the Vanderbilt family.

The Young estate is a farm of 100 acres of fine woodland and fields and not far from President Roosevelt's place at Oyster Bay.

It is said that one of the Vanderbilts is negotiating for the property with a view of establishing a summer residence with spacious grounds about it, on the plan of W. K. Vanderbilt's "Idle Hour" at Oyster Bay.
